“WHAT’S A PROSTITUTE?”

By: Larry B. Gelman, Psy. D.

- Simple Answer: “Someone who sells their body for money.”
- My View: “A prostitute is a person who consistently violates their values system for the sake of expediency.”
- Another View: “An individual who engages in sexual commerce for economic benefit is an entrepreneur.”
- Syllogism: “If we are not who we are, then we are who we are not!”
- Playful Poem: “When an is, is an is not;
And an is not, is an is;
Then what is, is not;
And what is not, is.”
- Forewarning: “When we go against our nature, we risk paying a heavy price.”
- Generalization: “Our nature defines and reflects who we are. When we violate the good and true parts of that nature, the result can only be bad and untrue.”
- Caveat: “Whosoever lives by the sword, dies by the sword.” Whosoever lives their life a lie, dies their life – all the days of their life – a liar!”
- Moral: “Be true to the you that really and truly is you.”
- Afterthought: “Never, ever prostitute yourself because in the long run, it never, ever pays!”
